'Life is the first gift, love is the second & understanding is the third.'

—Marge Piercy

Task 1

- For this action, we were separated into gatherings of four in which I discussed Marge Piercy's political development so we discussed 'The League of Nations which was a worldwide strategic gathering created after World War I as an approach to settle questions between nations before they ejected into open fighting.' Our gathering fused point on the Segregated White Only School development.

Task 3

- This was an individual errand I chose to take sonnet, for example,
- Barbie Doll, The central subject of the poem is that satisfaction, fulfilment, and vanity can be accomplished by using one's capacities to fill a functional need for the duration of regular daily existence, for the speaker surveys that an inert presence has no value or vitality since it is futile, vain, pointless, and irrelevant. Piercy uses non-exacting language, imagery, symbolism, portrayal, and nuances to develop this theme all through the piece. Piercy fires developing the subject in the essential abstain by portraying The individuals the best.
- To Be of Use, The focal topic of the sonnet is that fulfilment, satisfaction, and self-satisfaction can be achieved by utilizing one's abilities to fill a practical need throughout everyday life, for the speaker assesses that an inactive presence has no worth or essentialness since it is useless, vain, useless, and inconsequential. Piercy utilizes non-literal language, symbolism, imagery, depiction, and subtleties to build up this topic all through the sonnet. Piercy starts building up the subject in the primary refrain by depicting The people the best.

- Breaking Out, In these lines, a youngster, who is presented to ceaseless shame and local assignments as a youngster, asks regarding whether they need her to advise them concerning her first political act. By then, she looks at the nuclear family protests which are used for doing different errands. In any case, there is a garments machine, that is used for wringing out or squeezing damp pieces of clothing. It is used for squeezing even those articles of clothing, which require no squeezing like bedsheets, towels and her father's underwear. The speaker in the work, a youngster kid, sees her mother doing ceaseless local assignments as a typical endeavour. It is through her mother's circumstance and her own that she is proposing the piece of women in the public field and their miserable condition. Most of the women are treated as lesser individuals and made do all the nuclear family tasks, without giving them anything thusly. Or then again perhaps being offered thanks toward and respected for taking all the heaviness of the nuclear family assignments on their shoulders, they are tortured, really misused and mishandled. The speaker in the piece sees her mother doing tiring local errands like washing and squeezing the articles of clothing, cleaning and scowling the floor on a ceaseless reason. The use of words with 'ing's activity word structure like 'squeezing', 'killing' and 'scouring' includes the customary and interminable local undertakings of the speaker's mother. It gives off an impression of being that the speaker, who is a youngster youth is moreover presented to ceaseless embarrassment and family undertakings.

Conclusion

I would like to conclude in a way that Marge Piercy was not only a great poet but also a great activist. Because of her such work people from around the world know her.
